Paris, December, 11, N. S.

THE last certain Advices we have from the Army of the Allies in Italy, are dated the 29th past from Cremona, and import, that the Marshal de Broglie was advanced to Busleto, in the Way between Cremona and Parma, with two Brigades of Horse, 15 Squadrons of Dragoons, and two Brigades of Foot. The King of Sardinia and the Marshal de Coigny had cantoned the rest of their Troops in the Villages adjoining to the Canal of Palavicina. That Part of the Imperial Forces were gone down the Oglio, some Detachments had passed the Po at Viadana, and about 5000 Men had posted themselves at Bozolo, Sabioneta, and thereabouts; whereupon the the Marshal de Broglie had sent one Brigade of Foot and five Regiments of Dragoons to advance to Parma. On the 9th Instant the Duke de Villars was received into the French Academy, in the Room of the deceased Marshal his Father.

Whitehall, November 28, 1734.
